FALCONS FLY BY NIGHT

Doyt Perry Stadium gets new game lights in effort to draw fans

By Nick Hurm
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

In a 9-0 decision, the Bowling Green Board of Trustees accepted a proposal for the addition of lights at Doyt Perry Stadium and the surrounding parking lot area yesterday afternoon.

The project will cost an estimated $1,096,310, to be funded from a debt service. Construction will begin in June and is to be completed before fall semester 2001.

The vote officially brings night football as a permanent commodity to the Falcons. The hope of the BG athletic department is that the new lights will pack the stadium tight. With the popularity of previous night games aided by portable lights, BG Athletic Director Paul Krebs hopes that the permanent lights will boost attendance sales.

Health Center warns of vacation infection

By Shannon E. Kolkedy
GSS REPORTER

The University's Health Services is asking any student who vacationed in Acapulco, Mexico, during spring break to call the center.

According to Dr. Josh Kaplan, director of health services, the U.S. Center for Disease Control is currently studying an outbreak of what is believed to be a fungal infection called histoplasmosis.

Kaplan said the most common symptoms of histoplasmosis are a fever lasting three days and either shortness of breath, headache, cough or chest pains.

Since the illness is not normally very serious, those individuals who are infected are usually advised to wait for the illness to run its course. For more serious cases, however, anti-fungal drugs are prescribed.

"I don't want students to be alarmed," Kaplan said, "because I don't think there is any need to be alarmed."

Kaplan said that the advisory is an attempt to gather information for the health department so that they can make sure the illness truly is histoplasmosis.

The University Health Services is willing to cooperate with the study because they have received help from the health department in the past during an outbreak of measles and an outbreak of what was believed to be food poison-

Trustees modify Code of Conduct

By Nick Hurm
ASSISTANT SPORTS EDITOR

The new lights were not the only news during the April Board of Trustees meeting. Over 30 Bowling Green faculty members were up for promotion and tenure recommendation. All passed.

University President Sidney Ribeau opened the session by praising all of the people involved in Dance Marathon. "It was a wonderful accomplishment of the students," he said.

Code of Conduct Revisions

The University's code of conduct does not address students' setting fires. The Board of Trustees made a quick change by passing an 'offense against property' proposal. The new addition states punishment for intentional setting of fire to University property, the property of a member of the University community and/or property of member(s) of the greater Bowling Green community.

The Board also revised its position on harassment. Harassment is not only limited to repeated and untimely phone calls, but now electronic communication including e-mail and Instant Messenger. The Board also expanded its definition of stalk-

USG to reallocate funds

By Chuck Soder
USG REPORTER

A bill recommending to reallocate $85,000 of the University budget to student organizations next year generated debate at last night's Undergraduate Student Government meeting. USG will vote on the bill next Monday.

Of the $408 each student was charged in general fees last year, $7.50, or 1.8 percent, went to student organizations, according to the bill. The added $85,000 would increase total funds to $300,000, or about 2.3 percent of general fees.

USG President Marcos

Popovich and At-Large Senator Jon Bragg, signers of the bill, believe that current funds are not enough.

This plan will secure funding of new organizations on campus while ensuring that funding for older organizations stops decreasing, Popovich said. More than 20 organizations received funding decreases this year, he said.

"We should put [this issue] higher on the priority scale because, right now, it's on the bottom."

According to the bill, University organizations receive less funding than most other state schools in Ohio. University organizations received $215,000 last year, while student organizations at the University of Toledo received $619,000 and organizations at both Wright State and Ohio University received about $350,000.

Many members raised questions about where the money would come from and what program would be losing it.

According to Bill Arnold, the group's advisor, "Much of [the

All-night prayers unite U. Christians

By Jordan Fouts
CITY REPORTER

Turnout fell short of last time's 100, but attendees still called the second all-night prayer meeting a success.

Again in a Far Side T-shirt, senior Luke Gilkerson led the gathering from 9 p.m. Friday to 5 a.m. Saturday, this time hosting visitors from as far away as Columbus and Greenville.

They met under the banner of James 5:16: "The effective prayer of a righteous man can accomplish much."

"We need to believe in what we pray for so strongly that we are preparing for them to come," Gilkerson said early in the evening. "I'm not making this stuff up ... Jesus himself made that promise to us."

He added, "Don't let your spiritual epitaph be those other frightful words of James, 'You have not because you ask not.'"

2001 USG ELECTIONS CAMPAIGN DIARY

A DAILY LOOK AT WHO'S IN THE RUNNING ... AND HOW

Bragg/Fitch

John Bragg, presidential candidate for USG, and his running mate, Becca Fitch, took a day off of the campaign to concentrate on academics.

Over the weekend, they introduced their platform to the Greek units, trying to inform as many people as they could about the campaign. They also concentrated on informing the University students by hanging more signs and banners.

Bragg, along with Marcos Popovich, worked on coordinating a bill to recommend solutions to resolve Student Organization Funding Board problems. The bill will concentrate on funds reallocation for student organizations.

Bragg and Fitch also decided to integrate the issue of state funding in their platform. They are planning on working with other universities' student governments in order to get more state funding to stem the rising cost of tuition. They are encouraging all students to contact USG and sign petitions about this issue.

Bragg and Fitch are supporting the Latino Awareness week and are involved in some of LSU's events. Part of their campaign staff could be found yesterday on the Education steps teaching Latino dances to students walking by.

Freimark/Brandt

Though Joel Freimark's campaign for Undergraduate Student Government president officially began last week, the main work started last night.

From now until the elections is the most crucial time because, before then, it is much more difficult to get students' attention, he said.

Freimark and his campaign team spent time last night preparing large banners to hang across campus at locations such as Kamikazee's and various Greek houses. Freimark hung banners around campus last week, but many were taken down for unknown reasons. Nick Drake, member of the Elections and Opinions Board, attributed these removals to miscommunications, not other candidates.

Being under constant scrutiny from the student body is not easy to bear, Freimark said. "[The campaign] is one of the most emotionally exhausting things I've ever done."

Freimark and his running mate, Stephanie Brandt, also are preparing for the USG presidential/vice-presidential debates. Each debate will be held on Thursday and Wednesday, respectively, at 7:30 p.m. in 113 Olscamp.

Engelman/Pelzer

Undergraduate Student Government presidential candidate Brian Engelman began campaigning early on Monday morning by writing campaign information on chalkboards in five buildings on campus. In addition, Engelman and his running mate, Celeste Pelzer, have been spending time talking to as many students on campus as they possibly can.

"We'd like to talk to every single person on campus," said Engelman.

Engelman and Pelzer have spent time talking to a few fraternities and sororities and to random students throughout the campus. According to Engelman, they have received nothing but positive feedback from those students they have talked with.

"I think it is going well," Pelzer said of the campaigning, "and that we're reaching out to a lot of people."

Both Engelman and Pelzer stress the importance of their student-based platform.

"We think that out of all the candidates, we relate the most to the students," said Engelman. "Now it's up to them to get out and vote."

He also said that the most important aspects of this campaign are honesty and dedication.

Engelman, who ran last year with a different vice presidential candidate, said that last year's campaign was a valuable learning experience. He said that the most important issues of the campaign are mealcards off-campus, teacher evaluations on the USG website and closer commuter parking.

"It's not about the glory," Engelman said of the election. "It's about making BGSU a better place."

For more information, on Engelman and Pelzer's campaign, students can visit their website at www.geocities.com/usgvoteforme.

TV ads target women smokers

By Jenny Cole
U-WIRE

TOLEDO, Ohio — Since 1980, nearly three million U.S. women have died prematurely from smoking, according to a recently released report from the Surgeon General on women and smoking.

The report said 39 percent of all smoking-related deaths each year in the United States are women. This proportion has more than doubled since 1965.

One major influence in the increase of female smokers, according to the report, is the increased tobacco advertisements directed toward women.

University of Toledo's Darci Ault, health promotion coordinator at the Student Recreation Center, agrees.

"Advertising has played a key role in pulling people into smoking and they have been misled," Ault said. "They all show thin and healthy women, but [viewers] don't see any smoke. It's all been a façade to portray an image."

Most people do not think advertising affects their actions, Ault said, especially younger and college-aged people.

Liz Wheeler, a sophomore majoring in nursing, said she doesn't see advertising for smoking as a major influence in students' lives.

"Maybe in younger people," she said. "But I don't think there's a big rise [in smoking among women] because of advertising."

A version of pinball The Who could definitely sing about

The fake slim shady

It's enjoyed by children and grown-ups alike, it's a pastime that is practically as old as time itself.

I'm talking about pocket pinball, one of the few games you can play while you are asleep.

Whether a beginner or a wizard, it's not just a game, it's a journey. There is a great deal of strategy required that may not be realized. After reading this article, you may just become a pocket pinball wizard yourself.

Picture this: you're playing pocket pinball and you mom walks in the room. What do you do? Pause faster than Robert Downey Jr. would run from the police when they tell him it's time for a cavity search. Pausing the game is a tricky maneuver which many have not mastered.

In essence, it takes an incredible amount of will power but the ability can prove to be useful.

Simply put the game on pause, quickly remove your hands from your pockets, and resume the game once you feel you are alone again.

Perhaps the most serious and dangerous aspect of the game is losing a ball.

How does this happen? Mainly due to extensive play ... I'm talking "really extensive" play!

Aside from marathon play other causes are: playing in short shorts, forgetting to take sharp objects, such as a knife, out of one's pants before starting a game, and hitting the ball with excessive force.

One of the more in depth parts of the game is the ability to gain an extra ball.

Although it does not occur often, there are some known examples. Professional pocket pinball player Sir Spanksalot is a prime example.

He claims that he was practically born with the extra ball.

Remember, don't forget to keep track of your score. Although most beginners don't do this, as you increase in skill you will find that techniques such as hand motioning, speed, and developing a special touch can obtain more points.

I constantly keep track of my score. Recently I reached a million points.

Experience is the greatest teacher though, so when you are in that boring math or science class and are at the edge of a mental break-down, sneak in a game or two.

Who knows, you even may have been playing a game while reading this article.

Resume play.

A Heaping Helping of Deep Thoughts By Jack Handy

"I remember that one fateful day when Coach took me aside. I knew what was coming. 'You don't have to tell me,' I said. 'I'm off the team, aren't I?'"

"Well," said Coach, "you never were really ON the team. You made that uniform you're wearing out of rags and towels, and your helmet is a toy space helmet. You show up at practice and then either steal the ball and make us chase you to get it back, or you try to tackle people at inappropriate times."

"It was all true what he was saying. And yet, I thought something is brewing inside the head of this Coach."

He sees something in me, some kind of raw talent that he can mold.

Undercover police destroy faith in MSU

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Last week, members of a Michigan State University student anti-sweatshop group discovered that a "student" in the group was really an undercover officer from the campus police force. Members of the group reported that Jamie Gonzales, an campus police officer, had told Students for Economic Justice that she was an elementary education junior. Gonzales, who told group members that her name was Samantha Volare, had been active in the group's activities since mid-February.

Michigan State police attributed the infiltration to concerns that violence would erupt during the visit of a commencement speaker, World Bank President James Wolfensohn. Members of the organization had participated in the World Bank protests in Seattle in 1999.

It is inexcusable that the Michigan State police would send an officer to infiltrate a student group. To link students participating in protests to the possibility of planned violence at commencement exercises is a ridiculous and illogical leap. Not only is sending an undercover officer into a student group unethical, it is an act of bad faith on the part of the police department — one that will surely hinder student groups' relations with Michigan State.

YOU DECIDE

Do you think there should be a limit as to where and when police go undercover? Let us know at bgnews@listproc.bgsu.edu.

Although University of Michigan spokeswoman Diane Brown said the Department of Public Safety does not have any officer dedicated to monitoring student groups, the University's past record on keeping tabs on student activists is questionable.

In the 1950s, '60s, and '70s, Daily investigations revealed the University administration knew about FBI agents monitoring students on campus. Their monitoring activities included planting agents within groups like Students for a Democratic Society, in order to keep closer tabs on their activities.

In 1970, student activists who occupied North Hall for 33 hours that October discovered that the University's ROTC program was keeping extensive files on student activists. Although these instances of secret monitoring occurred years ago, in order to maintain good relations between the University and its students, the administration and police should ensure never to interfere with student organizations.

What Michigan State police officers did can only shake students' faith in the university.

Hopefully, the University of Michigan long ago realized that infiltration of student groups is unethical and won't go unnoticed. The successful detective work of students both recently at Michigan State and decades ago at this university at the very least shows that undercover agents in student groups will be exposed.

The administrations of both Michigan State and the University of Michigan should publicly commit to making sure investigations like these do not happen in the future.

RZA takes strong stance

AT ISSUE Witness the interaction between two actual (yet fictional) campus organizations.

In a shocking turn of events, the Resident Ztudent Association has decided that after being impeached from the Undergraduate Ztudent Government, they will closely scrutinize UZG bills so they can decide as to whether or not they will back the bills.

Most recently, they have analyzed and are in favor of the resolution which prompted the immediate impeachment and removal of the Resident Ztudent Association from the UZG.

"We (the RZA) have decided that doing away with some of the removable limbs of the UZG should be the first objective we take a stance on," one representative stated. "We have unanimously decided that the RZA should be discarded."

Later this representative said that the real reason the RZA left the UZG was due to "creative differences."

The Resident Ztudent Association, known mostly for their movie channel ... and ... um... did I mention they have a movie channel?

Anyway, this monumental moment marks the first time that the organization has shown interest in what goes on at UZG meetings. They reportedly plan on attending UZG meetings for the next couple of weeks until they get bored and no longer show up again.

The RZA is reviewing other bills as well. Some of these include a bill to add more "Best of the 80s" CDs to channel 63's already over-stocked supply and the recent freshmen dining services restriction bill. In addition to that, the possibility of playing movies besides "Shanghai Noon" and "The Shining" for this month is being looked into.

Upon asking one representative what has been done so far in the area of Residence Hall Governments, he replied, "We're in charge of Residence Hall

JACK DANIEL EAGLEEYE

Opinion Columnist

Governments? I don't even know what those are!"

This representative later asked if his quote could be removed from this article. Please erase this last paragraph from your memory. It never happened.

According to another representative, it is important that the student's voice is heard on campus. He later explains that this is directly why the RZA has left the decision-making to the UZG.

"The UZG can focus more of its energies upon the student body now that we have stepped out of the way," he said. "Moreover, we now have more time to work on our secret organization that conceals our achievements from being known by the student body. So far they have been doing a good job," this representative added.

Some critics say of the RZA that the organization is hypocritical for taking a watchdog stance on the UZG when only a few months back they wouldn't even show up at the UZG meetings.

One representative responded to this by saying, "If we oppose a UZG bill, there is a good chance it will not pass. I suppose that if we didn't get impeached from the UZG and voted against the bill there instead of at our own meetings, the chances would be better though. Maybe we should ask the UZG if we can have our seats back."

Despite asking nicely, the UZG said no.

Tempest strikes stage in Eva

What a spectacular extravaganza the BGSU Department of Theatre's production of Shakespeare's "The Tempest" is!

We enthusiastically applaud the director, Bradford Clark, the musical director and Gamelan leader, David Harnish, the lighting designer and technical director, Steve Boone and all the actors, manipulators, musicians and others very capably involved in this superb production.

The University and the community are given an excellently synchronized blending of puppets, masks and live actors in beautifully costumed and orchestrated visual and audio effects.

We strongly urge the community of Bowling Green and the University community to see these "creative imaginings" that are so pleasing.

By all means, get to the Eva Marie Saint Theatre in University Hall to purchase tickets for the remaining performances, which will be at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, April 20 and 21, and at 2 p.m. on Sunday, April 22nd.

It is a production you should not miss!

U. struggles with Title IX

AT ISSUE The involvement of the student body is a necessity if the University wants to sustain women's athletics.

No person in the United States of America shall, on the basis of sex, be excluded from participation in, or be denied the benefits of, or be subject to discrimination under any educational program or activity receiving federal financial assistance.

This statement is all too familiar to many of our universities throughout the United States who struggle to be in compliance with Title IX.

Title IX is part of the Educational Amendment of 1972, which attempts to stop gender discrimination in sports. How far have universities, specifically BGSU, come in implementing the regulations of Title IX in the past 30 years?

Universities affected by this amendment must adhere to one of the following requirements in order to be in compliance with Title IX:

- 1) Have roughly equal percentages of female athletes and female undergraduates, a condition known as "substantial proportionality."
- 2) Demonstrate that sport opportunities for women are gradually being expanded.
- 3) Prove that the college is fully and effectively accommodating the interests and abilities of women.

How does BGSU measure up to these requirements?

As do most universities with football programs, BGSU faces difficulties when trying to comply with requirement number one.

BGSU has an undergraduate population comprised of 58 percent females and 42 percent males. Achieving athletic proportionality equal to this is difficult because a football program consumes such a large number of male athletes and funds. BGSU revives itself, however, by distributing an equal proportion of scholarships to both male and female participants.

Requirement number two is where most universities place their efforts. Universities strive to add more women's programs, improve their facilities and continue to reallocate funds in the hopes of reaching higher levels of equity in the future.

However, these initiatives require money, something everyone needs more of.

Achieving requirement number three is virtually impossible, and basically speaks for itself. Could you imagine trying to fulfill the interests of an entire university?

Seeing that money is the biggest factor that prohibits universities from reaching compliance with Title IX, how can we, the student body, possibly influence the financial situation of something so large as the athletic department?

An increase in spectator turnout would certainly help. By increasing spectator turnout, we would be taking a step in the right direction toward achieving a greater sense of gender equality, and thus, enhancing compliance with Title IX.

You may wonder how student attendance could help to bring in revenue when our admission is free.

However, how could we possibly expect other members of the community to come out and support our men's and women's athletic teams when we ourselves do not attend?

As students, we provide the kind of environment that is needed to spark a competitive spirit in everyone. Although we do not necessarily add directly to the revenues, we create the kind of environment needed to draw others.

Ultimately, if we wish to achieve a greater sense of gender equality in sports at BGSU, the student population needs to do our part to make each event a competitive success in every way possible.

Increasing spectator turnout, and in turn revenues, will give BGSU the money necessary to fund the initiatives of Title IX.

SEXUAL ASSAULT | TAKE BACK THE NIGHT

March held to help victims

By Ivy Ickes and Megan Flanagan
WOMEN'S REPORTERS

Today's reality: Sexual assault occurs in all communities.

Tomorrow's promise: We can stop rape.

The first step: Opening people's eyes.

The Take Back the Night rally and march, with events beginning today at noon in Olscamp 105, are intended to bring people together to address taboo issues.

The event provides public awareness to issues of rape, sexual assault, domestic violence, molestation and incest. Along with education, this provides an opportunity for anyone who wants to share his or her personal experiences of how these incidents affect them as a member of society.

Some of the events that will take place throughout the day are a roundtable luncheon, self-defense workshops, a rally, a march and a post-march celebration. The march will start at the Clocktower near the Business Administration Building and go through campus, downtown Bowling Green and then back to the University.

The keynote speaker, Frances Driscoll, author of "The Rape Poems," will speak on the violations of sexual assault and its lasting effects. Driscoll will also read some selections from her poetry collection.

Guest speaker Kendel Kissinger will contribute to the rally by telling her personal experience of incest and opening the forum to anyone else wanting to share how their lives have been affected by violence.

After a performance by the University Gospel Choir, people will gather at the clock tower to begin the march.

Take Back the Night intends to stress the reality of sexual violation in a safe and supportive environment.

"Women need to be aware that they have every right to take care of themselves and their bodies 24/7, 365 days a year. Women need not be dependent for protection, they are just as capable of protecting themselves," said Ruth Sallee Gresham, rape educator.

Gresham will be moderating the roundtable luncheon to discuss a culturally specific worldview on violence against women. She will also hold a self-defense workshop. The workshop is open to women only and will show self-defense techniques.

Men are welcome to participate in the other events, especially the men's discussion group.

This event provides empowerment by the university and community uniting to send a message of zero tolerance. "This attitude [of empowerment] can continue after the events end," said Sallee Stiens, prosecuting attorney for Ernst and Young and a BGSU alumna. She adds, "No matter where you live, how well the area is lighted, and what the crime level is, you have to keep your head up and you have to pay attention. It is something men and women alike should be concerned with."

Changing ideas about rape may make women safer

By Ivy Ickes
WOMEN'S REPORTER

One out of three women will be raped in their lifetime.

However, there is much confusion as to what rape is.

The Ohio Revised Code defines rape as forcibly penetrating a person, against his or her will, vaginally, orally or anally. This includes victims who are incapable of giving consent because of their temporary, permanent, mental, or physical incapacity (such as being intoxicated) or because of their youth.

The code also mentions forcible sexual offenses. These are defined as any forced sexual act towards another person that may have been against their will. This, too, includes victims incapable of giving consent.

Between 1997 and 1999, eight sexual offenses were reported to University police. This number may be misleading: The 1996 National Crime Victim Survey found that fewer than one in every three rapes are reported to law enforcement.

While victims are affected the most on an individual level, they are not the only ones who feel the violation of sexual assaults.

"Everyone is affected by sexual assault and violence against women," Ruth Sallee Gresham said, "whether they want to admit it or not. It may be your mother, daughter, sister, cousin or roommate; someone you know has been affected by this kind of violence." Gresham is a rape educator and recipient of the Long Term Service Award for Sexual Assault Awareness Month.

She has also been instrumental in assisting with the development of the Ohio protocol for use of the Rape Kit, which is used to collect evidence for prosecution.

Cathryn Flanagan, an attorney for Fairfax County, VA, and a BGSU alumna, echoes Gresham's ideas.

"Violence against women is a societal problem, not a gender related issue; the issue of safety is an issue for all of society," she said. "It is about all people taking responsibility for his or her community. Boys should be raised to appreciate and relate to women as equals. And girls should be raised with a sense of their own assertiveness and autonomy."

Celesta Haraszti, co-adviser of the Women's Action Coalition and a graduate student, said, "Violence against women is a problem that all women must face and cope with, regardless of class, race, age or sexual orientation." She added, "By increasing women's and men's awareness of the extent and nature of the problem, we intend to show that changes need to be made in our culture and in our attitudes."

International dinner offers spice of life

By Jordan Fouts
CITY REPORTER

If anything strange yet familiar appears on Dining Services' menu, it probably debuted at the World Student Association's International Dinner.

Starting as early as Friday, students from across the globe prepared traditional dishes for WSA's annual dinner last Sunday night.

Aromas from about 20 ethnic foods, representing every continent, filled Harshman's kitchen Sunday afternoon. Rice, eggplant and paprika were standard fare, along with some less-common ingredients.

"I've never even seen this before today," Amy Hoops, Student Union assistant director, said as she picked up a can of fried bean curds which Keiko Matsuo was using for inari sushi.

Hoops is in charge of evaluating the recipes international students submit for the dinner. The three-week process involves choosing the most detailed recipes and ensuring a balanced menu.

Challenges for Hoops include finding ingredients, multiplying family-sized servings to feed 400 people, and translating measurements.

"Sometimes they're in metric [or] a 'spoonful' doesn't necessarily mean the same thing," Hoops said. "Everything is kind of a guess here."

Dining Services adopts some of these recipes for standard or theme menus, like the Indian vegetable biriyani Hoops called "intense" after sampling.

"The International Dinner is really important to the Dining Services department," Hoops said. "It's a chance to work with students one-on-one, [and] appreciate different styles and arts of cooking."

Margarida Brandao said the strawberry cake she made, popular in Brazil, is hard to find in America. "It feels like a different way to share my culture," she said.

"I'm convinced this is a large part of the answer," Krebs said. "It lends itself to a lot of fun and excitement. If the student response is any indication, we're going to have a large student turnout."

Mike Snyder, a junior sports management major, is just one of many students that Krebs and BG football coach Urban Meyer have given positive support for the lights.

"Having more night games will be great," Snyder said. "A lot of times I didn't get up in time for the games or my afternoon was planned out with work or whatever. Night games give me the opportunity to go out there and see more football games."

Both Krebs and Meyer said they are planning out the scheduled times for next fall.

"I spent time with Paul (Krebs) and we talked about it briefly," Meyer said. "We would like to get four night games, for sure three at the least."

The games Meyer mentioned to be played under the lights were Buffalo, Temple and Miami.

"Those would be three great games under the lights," Meyer said. "We're going to also discuss Homecoming, but that probably won't be just because of the tradition of Homecoming. We might have Toledo under the lights, but we're not sure about that yet."

Krebs said there are other ways besides BG football where the lights could bring money and attention to the school.

"Bringing in lights will help draw more attention into getting high school state playoff games," Krebs said. "We told the Ohio High School Association we would like to host some games."

The call for lights not only popular in the matter of football, but also with the concern of safety in Parking Lot 6 which has had a higher rate of vandalism than most areas around campus. During the meeting, University President Sidney Ribeau commended the work of USG and the voice of the students for their response. Ribeau said he believed this will cut down on vandalism in that area.

According to Kaplan, it is very unlikely that the campus would see any reported cases of this illness on campus.

"If they (students) aren't sick now," he said, "they probably won't be."

Travel agents from Holiday Travel Center, Millstream Travel, Inc. and AAA Travel Agency in Bowling Green reported that they were unaware of any students who traveled to Acapulco.

Vassileva said. "Usually our moms make it."

"We'll see how it goes," Gueorguiev added.

Michelle Ellis, a Dining Services employee who helped make Japanese yakitori, said she enjoyed the break from routine.

Cook Jeff Hilbert, helper with the dinner for almost a decade, said, "You get to make a lot of different stuff, and meet a lot of different people."

Hoops said, "It takes a lot of work, but has a lot of rewards."

Stiens also suggests that when leaving friends for the night, one should call and let the others know the destination was reached safely. She adds, "being confident, aware and cared for really go a long way in preventing violence from occurring."

However, all the precautions possible can't always prevent violence, which is why an event aimed at changing attitudes, such as Take Back the Night, is seen as being so important.

"People must be reminded that sexual assault is not about sex," said Gresham. "It is an act of taking away dignity and power. It is not just a gender issue, it's a human problem."

Victim advocates from the SAAFE program will be available to talk to anyone needing their services. All conversations are kept confidential. Look for them wearing gray shirts.

campus Christian organizations spoke about their group's upcoming plans.

Among those represented were Agape Ministries, Active Christians Today, Cru, Dayspring Campus Ministries, H2O, Glory-Phi-God, J.C. Ministries, and the University Gospel Choir.

Sarah Leake, visiting from Columbus, said of the groups' participation, "I was really pleased with the unity between the groups. There's discord normally among Christians, so it was refreshing."

Gilkerson said, "Without that unity, you're missing a crucial component of ministry."

After students prayed together for friends, family, the communities of both the city and the University and other needs, they took their prayers outside and walked the campus.

"A prayer walk is an up-close and personal way of praying in the places we expect God to answer them," Gilkerson said.

A local attendee, freshman Derek Stegall, said, "Compared to last time, it was just amazing. I think every time we get together in the name of Jesus, we're going to be blessed."

After the meeting, Gilkerson said, "I want people to know there is a God in heaven eager to respond to our prayers, and eager to bless his children."

He added, "This is the beginning of something great here in Bowling Green."

Fire sparks safety inquiry

By Kristen Ploska
U-WIRE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — The accidental fire that nearly decimated the inside of the Florida State University Sigma Chi fraternity house last Tuesday raised questions concerning the safety standards set for this and other fraternity and sorority residences at Florida State University.

The fire, which was started by a candle flame spreading onto a nearby blanket, caused an estimated $300,000 in damage to the three-story house.

Some problems that could have arisen had the fire not taken place during the day, were more damage and possible injuries to the residents.

According to firefighters at the scene, there were problems with some of the smoke detectors in the building. The house also was not equipped with a sprinkler system, being old enough to be exempt from the state law that requires new three-story buildings to install them.

However, Graduate Assistant in Greek Life Matt Geren, gives credit to Sigma Chi in calling this incident a coincidence.

"They had spent a lot of time and a lot of money to get up to code as far as safety goes," Geren said.

Fire safety inspections are done on each fraternity and sorority house on a regular basis. While some groups hire private inspectors, most deal through Fire Prevention Specialists.

In these inspections, the buildings are separated into two groups in which to be checked, depending on the style and structure. Of the two groups, which are dormitory and residential, Sigma Chi had a Residential Fire Rating. They passed the last inspection and were looking good for the next one, on April 13.

"Recently we've put a push on making sure they're up to code," Geren said. "We sort of scare them into it, because if they don't take the proper steps to uphold the safety, they could get kicked off campus."

Each fraternity and sorority is also required to go over a fire safety plan, regarding such things as emergency exit routines, leaving immediately without gathering belongings and calling the fire department.

"The next step we're looking for is to make sure all of the fraternity and sorority houses have a centralized sprinkler and fire alarm system," Geren said. "The centralized system will make everyone in the house aware that there is a fire. We're planning on helping them financially with this, because they run from $50,000 to $60,000 for installation."

Sigma Chi had been attempting to make their house more fire safe before this accident. They fixed a damaged fire escape as well as supplied fire extinguishers throughout the house. They had also begun replacing smoke detectors that aided in the safety of the residents in the fire.

"We're really proud of what they've done as far as strives for safety," Geren said. "Because they did make these steps and acknowledge the problem before the accident, everyone was okay."

general fee goes to athletics, the Student Recreation Center and Student Health Services." It is still uncertain as to which University program would lose the $85,000 in general fees. The group plans to have pinpointed the source of the money before next Monday's vote.

Also before Monday, Bragg plans to gain signatures and support from organizations on campus.

Catanya Elliot, senator at-large, said that the group should also seek the opinions of students not in campus organizations. Kate Newnam, senator at-large, agreed. "The majority of students are not in student organizations," she said.

However, every USG bill must be approved by Faculty Senate and other administrators before going into effect. Should they disagree with the bill's current requests, Popovich said a compromise is possible.

Students who wish to voice their opinions can contact a USG member or call their office at 372-8116.

Japanese textbook riles Korea

By PAUL SHIN
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SEOUL, South Korea—Escalating a diplomatic skirmish over a new Japanese history textbook that critics say whitewashes World War II atrocities committed by Japan, South Korea announced Monday that it planned to recall its ambassador to Tokyo.

The Japanese government has come under fire from South Korea, China and other Asian nations for giving its approval last week to a middle-school textbook written by scholars who defend the nation's wartime record.

Outrage has been especially vocal in Korea, where bitter memories of 35 years of Japanese colonial rule from 1910 until the end of the World War II in 1945 remain vivid. Opponents say the textbook justifies Japan's occupation of its Asian neighbors and emphasizes the suffering of the Japanese people during the war over the atrocities inflicted by its military on the rest of the region.

The South Korean government immediately lodged an official complaint, and demonstrators took to the streets in Seoul. On Monday, the South Korean government decided to recall its ambassador to Japan in response mounting domestic criticism that its objections had not been forceful enough.

Ambassador Choi Sang-ryong will return to Seoul on Tuesday to discuss the government's position on the matter, Assistant Foreign Minister Lim Sung-joon told reporters, though he qualified the recall as "temporary."

The tussle over the new textbook is the latest battle between Japan and the rest of Asia over what Japanese students are taught about how their country behaved during the war.

In 1993, Japan's Education Ministry gave into mounting pressure and, for the first time, allowed mention of the 200,000 women kidnapped throughout Asia to work in military brothels.

But most textbooks used the standard government euphemism for the sex slaves — "comfort women" — without explaining what they were forced to do.

Since last week, Japanese politicians have scrambled to remind its Asian neighbors that Japan stands by an official apology for its World War II aggression made in 1995 by then-Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama.

But they also have said they have no plans to revise the new textbook, stressing that it was reviewed by an impartial committee of education officials who demand 137 changes of passages deemed inappropriate.

Officials in South Korea and Japan worried that the high-profile textbook dispute could set back relations between the two countries.

US-China stand-off continues

By CHRISTOPHER BODEEN
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

HAIKOU, China — Amid signs that an impasse over a U.S. spy plane could settle into a lengthy routine, China let U.S. diplomats visit its detained crew for a fourth time Monday in a meeting free of bureaucratic hurdles.

A U.S. official said the air crew was in "excellent health and their spirits are extremely high." But there was no indication that Beijing was wavering in its demand for a formal apology from Washington in a standoff over the plane's in-flight collision with a Chinese fighter jet.

Chinese President Jiang Zemin is in Argentina on a 12-day regional tour, and it was unclear whether his absence was delaying deliberations on a settlement. Jiang is due in Beijing next week.

Despite the seemingly intractable gap in the two sides' public positions, the meeting Monday between U.S. Embassy officials and all 24 crew members on Hainan island in the South China Sea — where the plane made an emergency landing on April 1 — was organized far more swiftly than previous encounters.

The relative ease of gaining access to the crew of the EP-3E reconnaissance plane suggested both sides had established a formula for regular contacts.

But China's shift to a less confrontational stance on the logistics of the meetings, contrasted with a steady flow of defiant rhetoric from government officials and media. This suggested a solution was not imminent.

Army Brig. Gen. Neal Sealock, the U.S. military attache to Beijing, and a consular official went directly to the meeting. That was in contrast to earlier meetings, when Sealock had to discuss ground rules beforehand with Chinese officials for up to 3 1/2 hours.

China has not publicly responded to a U.S. request for two meetings a day with the crew.

The Chinese plane crashed into the South China Sea and its pilot is missing and believed dead. Beijing is aggressively championing pilot Wang Wei as a national martyr, and a rallying point for anti-U.S. sentiment.

Sealock met the crew in a group for 40 minutes — about the same amount of time as in previous meetings. He saw eight crew members at their last meeting on Saturday.

"We talked about any number of things this evening, some things they were interested in," Sealock said without elaborating.

"They have been able to clean up their uniforms and they're being well taken care of," he said, describing their living conditions as like a "hotel environment."

Sealock confirmed the crew was receiving e-mails from family members in the United States. He did not say whether Chinese officials were present at the meeting.

BG NEWS BRIEFING UN enters war-torn Sierra Leone region

U.N. troops entered a rebel-held diamond-mining town for the first time in Sierra Leone's war, patrolling the rebel stronghold without resistance, the U.N. force commander announced Monday.

The deployment asserted U.N. peacekeepers' right of access to one of rebel's key prizes in the 10-year-old conflict: the Tongofield diamond field, one of the West African nation's richest.

U.N. peacekeepers carried out the patrol in the town of Tongofield Saturday but revealed it only Monday.

Judge sends twin girls back to US

The "Internet Twins" — born in America and adopted by a British couple through an online service — should go home to have a court decide who should raise them, a judge ruled Monday.

Justice Andrew Kirkwood ruled that the 9-month-old girls should be returned to Missouri, where their estranged biological parents are seeking custody. The British couple who adopted the twins were considering whether to appeal.

American Airlines buys TransWorld

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — American Airlines on Monday completed the acquisition of most of the assets of Trans World Airlines. "Today we celebrate a true milestone for the employees and customers of both American Airlines and TWA," said Donald J. Carty, chairman and CEO of American Airlines.

Hall-of-Famer Stargell dies

By ALAN ROBINSON
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PITTSBURGH—The Family has lost its patriarch.

Hall of Famer Willie Stargell, who led the Pirates to two World Series victories with his tape-measure homers, died of a stroke Monday at age 61.

He had been in failing health for several years with a kidney disorder, according to officials at New Hanover Regional Medical Center in Wilmington, N.C., where he died.

The Pirates opened their new ballpark Saturday and unveiled a 12-foot bronze statue of Stargell, the man known as "Pops." They postponed a formal ceremony dedicating the statue because he could not attend.

"Now, every opening day at PNC Park, everybody will know this is Willie Stargell's day," said Chuck Tanner, Stargell's manager from 1977-82. "He's up there, and he knows the Pirates are opening today."

One of the greatest home run hitters ever, in volume and in distance, Stargell hit 475 homers — many of them soaring, majestic shots that rattled a pitcher's confidence. With Stargell batting cleanup for most of his 20-year career, the Pirates won World Series championships and NL pennants in 1971 and 1979 and six NL East titles from 1970-79. He was inducted into the Hall of Fame in 1987.

Stargell was a dynamic leader on the field and a fatherly yet forceful presence off it. The 1979 Pirates were nicknamed "the Family" from the Sister Sledge song, "We Are Family," and Stargell said years later that it wasn't a misnomer.

"We won, we lived and we enjoyed as one," Stargell said. "We molded together dozens of different individuals into one working force. We were products of different races, were raised in different income brackets, but in the clubhouse and on the field we were one."

Tanner said Stargell's personal magnetism was a key ingredient in the clubhouse.

"When you had Willie Stargell on your team, it was like having a diamond ring on your finger," Tanner said.

Detroit logs record murder arrests

By JIM IRWIN
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — Police in Detroit averaged three arrests for every murder case in 1998 — a ratio so high that critics accuse the department of making wholesale arrests of witnesses, not suspects, just to get them to talk.

A federal lawsuit filed by a Detroit lawyer late last month seeks a court order banning the "practice of arresting witnesses who may have knowledge of murders but who are not involved in the actual murders."

Police Chief Benny Napoleon has denied the department makes "dragnet arrests" of witnesses. But he has begun an internal review, and issued a new policy in March that prohibits officers from taking witnesses into custody without a court order.

The arrest rate, and allegations of unconstitutional dragnets, were first reported by the Detroit Free Press in March.

The newspaper cited FBI statistics showing Detroit police arrested 1,310 people in investigating 430 murders in 1998, the latest year for which national figures were available. At the same time, less than half of those 1998 homicides have been solved — one of the worst performances among big-city police departments.

The 3-to-1 ratio of arrests to murders is far above that of other major U.S. cities.

"From the outside, it seems outrageous and extraordinary," said James Alan Fox, a criminologist at Northeastern University in Boston. "I don't know of it being done elsewhere. Three-to-one just off the charts."

For the same year, Chicago police made 753 arrests in 703 murder cases and Philadelphia police arrested 309 people in 338 homicides, the FBI statistics showed.

In 1999, Detroit police arrested 1,152 people in connection with 415 murders. Comparable figures for other major cities were not available. Only 189 of the Detroit homicides were cleared — that is, suspects were identified, regardless of whether they were convicted or even arrested.

The city has reached at least two six-figure settlements with people alleging they were detained illegally as witnesses while homicide investigators waited for them to tell what they might know.

And the city and police department were sued in federal court last month on behalf of two men allegedly held without probable cause after separate 1998 slayings. Mayor Dennis Archer, a former state Supreme Court justice, said wholesale arrests of witnesses are improper and should be stopped.

Lockheed Martin Space Systems under suspicion

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—Sen. Tom Harkin is accusing Lockheed Martin Space Systems of using "an apparent accounting trick" in an effort to scam the Pentagon out as much as $100 million, USA Today reported.

Citing a letter Harkin has sent to the Defense Department and an interview with him, the paper says in Monday's editions that the difference involves the sale of some Silicon Valley facilities owned by Lockheed that were developed, in part, with government money.

Harkin cites Pentagon audits saying the company's accounting methods were "flawed, unreasonable, and inequitable to the government." The company calls it an honest disagreement.

"We are in negotiations with (Pentagon auditors) about that disagreement and we are committed to reaching a mutually acceptable agreement on the issue," James Fetig, chief spokesman for Lockheed Martin, told the paper.

Harkin says the Pentagon paid for improvements on the buildings, depreciation, repair and maintenance expenses under contracts with Lockheed Martin and should benefit from the sale of the facilities.

But Lockheed applied all of the proceeds from the sale to the land and none to the buildings, claiming they were worthless. That meant the Pentagon could not receive any of the proceeds.

Buckeyes stay with quarterback

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There's a new head coach and many other fresh faces at Ohio State's spring practices. Yet Steve Bellisari is still the quarterback, at least until someone takes the job from him. With two years as a starter already under his belt, Bellisari's name hasn't been written down in ink as a starter, but as the Buckeyes go through spring practices it sounds as if it will take a huge effort by one of the other candidates to unseat him.

Reds beat Pirates in new stadium

By Alan Robinson
AP Sports Reporter

PITTSBURGH — The Cincinnati Reds probably wish the Pittsburgh Pirates would open a new ballpark every season.

The Reds ruined the Pirates' first game in PNC Park on Monday just as they did the inaugural game in Three Rivers Stadium 31 years before, winning 8-2 behind Sean Casey's two-run homer and five RBIs.

Just as in their 3-2 victory on July 16, 1970, at Three Rivers, a Reds first baseman hit the first homer in Pittsburgh's new ballpark — then it was Tony Perez, this time it was Casey, a native Pittsburgher.

Casey, who estimates he once saw 15-20 games a season in Three Rivers Stadium, didn't take long to make himself at home in the NL's smallest ballpark by hitting a two-run homer in the first off Todd Ritchie (0-2).

The drive followed an emotional pregame salute to Hall of Famer Willie Stargell, who died earlier in the day at age 61 following a long illness.

Casey, who went 4-for-4 and reached base five times, seemed especially moved by the Stargell tribute. He responded with a Stargell-like drive to the right-center power alley for his second homer of the season.

It was the Reds' second game in four days in a new ballpark — they also played the debut game in Milwaukee's Miller Park on Friday, losing 5-4 — and their first road victory following an 0-3 start.

The Reds aren't the most accommodating visitors when it comes to opening new ballparks, also winning in the first game in Dodger Stadium in 1962.

The Pirates lost their eighth consecutive home opener no matter the venue — they haven't won since 1993 — by falling behind 3-0 to Reds rookie Chris Reitsma (1-0), who shut them out on three hits until the seventh. By then, Casey had added an RBI single following Michael Tucker's double in the sixth.

Casey added a two-run double in a four-run ninth against reliever Marc Wilkins, who also threw a run-scoring wild pitch.

Aramis Ramirez, who hit three homers Sunday in Houston, and Kevin Young singled to start the seventh. Pat Meares followed by hitting a ball to the mound that bounced awkwardly off Reitsma's right knee, loading the bases.

Reliever Denny Reyes came on to get pinch-hitter John Vander Wal to hit an apparent double-play grounder, but third baseman Aaron Boone mishandled the ball, scoring Ramirez and keeping the bases loaded.

Softball loses to Central Michigan

Team looks to rebound during double-header at home against OU

By Dorothy Wrona
SPORTS REPORTER

After suffering a sweep at Central Michigan this past weekend, the Falcon softball team will return to action today with a doubleheader against Ohio University.

BGSU was swept by league rival CMU, snapping a five-game MAC win streak.

The Falcons opened the series on Friday with a 2-0 loss. CMU scored in the bottom of the first with a double.

The Falcons' best scoring chance came in the fifth inning. Libby Voshell led off with a double to right-center. Holly Frantz's sacrifice bunt advanced pinch runner Liz Tuza to third. Kandice Machain followed with an infield single, but was unable to score Tuza. An infield pop-up and a groundout ended the inning.

In the sixth the Chippewas added a one-out insurance run. Jen Skuta doubled off of Falcon starter McKenna Houle, went to third on a groundout and scored on Kim Burke's single.

The Falcons could not score in the seventh.

Houle fell to 6-5 on the season with the loss. Jody Johnson, pitching in relief, retired the only Chippewa she faced.

In game one of Saturday's doubleheader, CMU came from behind in the seventh for a 3-2 win.

Renée Rosemeier put BGSU on the board 1-0 in the fourth inning with her third home run of the season. Before tagging home plate she celebrated with a backflip.

CMU took advantage of a two-out error in the bottom of that inning, when Michelle Brander hit an infield grounder to score Hope Robertshaw.

Tennis team wins

By Erica Gambaccini
SPORTS REPORTER

While everyone was outside on Sunday enjoying the nice weather the men's tennis team captured two more victories.

They defeated both Robert Morris College and Cleveland State University 7-0 to improve their record to 15-8 on the season.

"It was tough to come back out," said head coach Jay Harris. "Robert Morris is a tough team."

The Falcons first battled it out against Robert Morris forcing only one match to go into a third set.

Junior Ed Kuresman lost his first set 0-6 to Colonials' Mamoun El Kettani in the second singles flight. Kuresman rallied back to win the second set 7-5 and the third set 6-4 to come away with a victory.

Sophomore Nicolas Lopez-Acevedo had a tough second match in the first singles flight against RMC's John Mollis after beating him 6-2 in the first set. The second set went it's full length, but Lopez-Acevedo pulled away with a 7-6 victory.

Best outing of spring for golfers

By Joel Hammond
SPORTS REPORTER

Thanks to a little cooperation from Mother Nature, the BG men's golf team has been able to finally hit the links.

They are reaping some serious benefits.

The Falcons placed third this past weekend at the Ball State Invitational in Muncie, Indiana. Their total of 914 placed them behind host Ball State, who won the event with 891. Ferris State placed second with 905.

"This was the first time since the fall that we have been in contention going into the final round," said head coach Garry Winger. "That's all you can ask for, is to be in a position to win the tournament. We were in the final pairing with Ball State, and we could have won it. This was a big step forward for us."

Junior Brian Gerken led the Falcon charge with a three-round total of 226 (76-75-75) to place 11th. Senior Jon Smarelli was 18th, with 229 (75-74-80); Justin Gillham (81-75-77) and Adam Balls (83-75-75) tied for

Football pre-season starts with surgery

BG SPORTS INFORMATION

Senior wide receiver Kurt Gerling will undergo arthroscopic surgery on his left knee and will not return for the remainder of spring drills. The severity of his injury will not be known until after the surgery is performed.

Senior wide receiver Aaron Alexander continues to be hampered by the same injury that limited his play in the fall (right knee/separated patella). He is expected to have surgery to repair the problem and is out for the remainder of the spring.

In the fifth the Falcons reclaimed the lead. Nikki Rouhana hit a one-out single and went to second on a passed ball. One out later Jen Domschot singled to plate Rouhana and make the score 2-1 Falcons.

In the bottom of the inning the Chippewas tied the score. Becky Manson drew a walk off of Andrea Genter and scored on Amy Morrison's single to right, beating the throw to the plate.

CMU scored the game-winning run in the seventh. Sarah Hamilton singled and advanced on Manson's single to right. Hamilton tried for third as the Falcons attempted to throw her out, but scored when the throw went off target.

Despite pitching a six-hitter, Genter dropped to 3-2 on the season.

In game two, the Falcons fell victim to Amber Puchalski's perfect game in a 1-0 loss.

Falcon starter Jessie Milosek kept the game scoreless through the first four innings.

In the fifth Hamilton singled, but was thrown out on Manson's attempted sacrifice bunt. Falcon third baseman Lynsey Ebel fielded the ball and threw to shortstop Voshell at second for the force-out.

But Morrison managed to shift Manson to second on a sacrifice bunt. Robertshaw played her with a single to centerfield for the 1-0 lead.

In the sixth, BGSU got its best chance to reach base, when Liz Tuza hit a ball toward left field. But Robertshaw ended the threat with a diving catch.

In her complete game, Milosek allowed one run, eight hits and one walk. She also struck out two while falling to 5-5 this season.

Overall, BGSU head coach Leigh Ross-Shaw was pleased with the Falcons' defense and pitching. While the Falcons did not hit as much as usual, she said that CMU had a strong pitcher.

"She threw well, especially the last game," Leigh Ross-Shaw said.

BGSU will attempt to rebound from the loss in today's doubleheader against OU at the BGSU Softball Field.

The Bobcats lead the MAC East division with a 9-2 record, and are 24-12 overall. BG lost two of the three games to OU last season.

The doubleheader is an important one for BGSU to stay in the MAC race. To prepare for it the Falcons have worked on their hitting.

"I think we've got some mental stuff to work through, but we'll be fine," Ross-Shaw said. "Just working on seeing the ball and fine tuning our swings."

First pitch is scheduled for 2 p.m.

Tomorrow the Falcons will travel to South Bend, Ind., for a doubleheader with Notre Dame. The Irish are ranked No. 11 in the nation with a 32-3 record overall.

The Falcons suffered a two-game sweep at ND in their last meeting against the Irish two years ago.

The Falcons have already faced some nationally-ranked opponents this season and Ross-Shaw expects BGSU to be competitive against the Irish.

"Any day, you never know which team's going to show up," she said. "You just have to play hard."

Game one will begin at 3:30 p.m. local time at Ivy Field.

Tennis takes two matches this weekend

The Brown and Orange captured wins in every singles and doubles match.

Kossoff did not lose a single game after not playing in Saturday's match against Toledo due to strep throat.

After blanking Robert Morris earlier in the afternoon the Falcons were ready to do the same to Cleveland State and they did.

"Cleveland State is a new program," Harris said. "We were able to use some of our depth in that match."

The Brown and Orange lost only nine games total throughout the whole match, losing two games over the three doubles flights.

In the second through sixth singles flights the Falcons lost one or fewer games.

M. Lopez-Acevedo in the fourth singles flight and Kossoff in the sixth singles flight did not lose a single game.

Kureman and Gardonyi at the last doubles flight also did not lose a single game en route to a 8-0 victory.

Aikman retires

By Jaime Aron
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

IRVING, Texas — Troy Aikman's NFL career ended with the Dallas Cowboys after all.

The three-time Super Bowl champion announced his retirement at a news conference Monday at Texas Stadium, where he started for 12 seasons.

"You watch and you think that your time will never come," said Aikman, fighting back tears as he announced his plans. "My time has come."

Aikman suffered four concussions in his last 20 starts — giving him 10 in his career — and has a degenerative back problem.

"I know it's the right thing. I know it's the right thing for me because of my health, concussions, the back problems I've had, it's took its toll," he said.

Aikman said the competitor in him wanted to continue, but he said his family weighed in his decision.

"I think when all things are considered it was the right thing for me and my family," Aikman said. "I just can't do it anymore. If it was just me, then I think it would be a little easier to try to go on."

Meyer comments on football team

faster pace. I'm pleased with the way they are trying, but we still have forever to go."

"We are only one day into pads. One thing we try to do is make the team understand the difference between a game tempo and a teach tempo and I thought they responded fairly well to picking up the level of play when they competed against each other."

On the competition at several positions:

"I think there is good competition at quarterback with Josh Harris and Andy Sahn. David Azzi has had some issues where he hasn't practiced very much because of health reasons (asthma), but we should be fine."

"Receivers are a real concern because Kurt Gerling went down and he was having a good spring. Robert Redd is having a great spring so far and David Bautista is having a really good spring. After that we are really hurting at the wide receiver position. We need some guys to step up. If we are going to run the offense we are talking about doing, I am really concerned with the numbers at receiver."

The first group on our offensive line is trying and responding to our coaching. The second team, the group behind them is doing well so we will have some depth.

"Our tight ends have got to get much better."

(Running backs) "It's hard to say who is ahead of one another. I think those guys are trying. Once again with one day of pads, I want to see some electricity. When you are playing running back you should see some magic when they touch the ball and it's hard to say until you get into a scrimmage situation when guys are trying to tackle you."

(On the defense) "I thought we would be a little further ahead then where we are, especially when you saw how they were working out in the off-season. I was anxious to see what they would look like on the field and if they would just carry over how they worked in the off-season on the defensive side of the field."

On the adjustment to being the head coach:

"I love it (getting to roam and work with all the positions). That's probably the one thing you enjoy about being a head coach. You get to be involved in every aspect of the game. I spend a lot of time with our special teams because that is my background. The same thing on offense. I only coached one year on defense and I get to spend time over there as well. If there is one strength I have, it's getting guys to play hard. That's the number one enjoyment I have right now. I like getting involved in offense, defense, and special teams and just being around the players."

Golfers gain confidence

32nd, with 223; and Andy Miller rounded out the BG scoring, tying for 51st with 238 (77-82-79).

"Brian played well, and has played well all season long for us," said Winger. "I think he may have the lowest stroke average on the team; he's played very consistently. These guys are realizing that they have experience and can play with anyone."

The Falcons next play this weekend in Columbus, at the prestigious Ohio State Invitational, where they have not played since 1994.

Little sibs and kids weekend offers plenty to do

BY KYLENE FOSTER, ASSISTANT EDITOR

This year's Little Sibs and Kids Weekend is being held from April 20-22. If you have a little brother or sister coming to visit, there are many events planned.

At 8 p.m. on Friday, April 20 and Saturday, April 21, a performance of Shakespeare's "Tempest" will feature a Balinese Puppet/Mask show. It will take place at Eva Marie St. Theatre at University Hall. A matinee performance will also be offered at 2 p.m. Sunday, April 22. For more information, call 372-2222.

Delta Sigma Jabberwock, a multicultural talent and fashion show will be featured April 20 at 8:30 p.m. at 101 Olscamp Hall. Tickets are available for 1 dollar each.

If you'd like to show your sibling about the University's Greek organizations, now is your chance. Beta 500, put on by Beta Theta Pi, will be held in the Olscamp and Jerome Library parking lot from noon to 7 p.m. Several Greek organizations will be participating in the event to raise money for sick children. Proceeds will benefit the Ronald McDonald House. Contact Joe Playcan at 373-0121 if you have any questions.

For all you music lovers, a performance will be given at Kobacker Hall in the Moore Musical Arts Center. It will feature a symphonic band and a guest soloist, Velvet Brown, who plays the tuba. This event is free and open to the public. For more information, contact the Musical Arts Center.

More campus events will be posted at a later date for Little Sibs and Kids Weekend. You can check them out at:

<http://www.events.bgsu.edu>

Besides staying on campus, there are many other things you and your sibling can do together. There are many restaurants in the community featuring a wide variety of menu choices. There are also some great shops located downtown and at the Woodland Mall.

If you choose to stay in and bond, take advantage of the many video stores we have in the area, and the many pizza choices to go along with your movies.

No matter what you and your sibling choose to do that weekend, have an enjoyable and safe time.

McFall Gallery hosts 'Triumphant Spirit'

BY KEVIN AEH, EDITOR

The term "survivor" is everywhere these days. Destiny's Child is singing about it on the radio and it's the only thing on the minds of every contestant on the reality TV shows.

In a time when the term may be used too loosely, photojournalist and BGSU graduate Nick Del Calzo is bringing an exhibition to the McFall Center Gallery that defines the true meaning of surviving.

"The Triumphant Spirit" includes 51 photographs of Nazi death camps survivors. They document the stories of more than four dozen heroes who overcame the horrors of the Holocaust. The photos are also featured in a book of the same name.

The national traveling exhibition is currently on display. Del Calzo, who earned his bachelor's degree in journalism at the University and now lives in Denver, began interested in the subject after a visit to the Dachau concentration camp in Germany. Although not Jewish himself, Del Calzo credits the 1991 visit with dramatically changing his life.

He returned to the United States and began creating a lasting record of the Holocaust survivor's stories. The project serves as both a history lesson and portrays the power of hope.

"It is for those who may have abandoned hope, such as growing numbers of today's youth who are leading destructive lives, with the intention that they resolve to identify and live their dreams," Del Calzo said. Thomas Keneally, author of "Schindler's List," wrote the introduction of Del Calzo's book, "The Triumphant Spirit." The book was on the 1998 list of "Best Books for Young Adults" by the American Library Association.

In conjunction with the showing, Del Calzo will be on campus April 18. He is scheduled to speak at the College of Arts and Sciences Forum and will discuss his work in various classes throughout the day. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

Nikolaikirche

7:30 p.m.
(1995) By German Director Frank Beyer. Beyer's story climaxes in mid-1989, the year of revolution in Central Europe. It tells the story of a state security agent's family after his death in 1987. The lives of his daughter, son and widow are touched by the agency he served, as were the lives of many East German citizens. The title of the films comes from Leipzig's famous 13th century church of St. Nicholas, a focus of the 1989 popular revolt.

OAR will rock Anerson Arena April 21

BY BRIAN RELINGER

OAR (short for Of a Revolution) has recently released "Risen", and on Saturday, April 21st, you can see them perform here at BGSU courtesy of our friends at UAO. The band from Columbus has been gaining in popularity with every release, and is currently touring throughout the Northeastern U.S.

Tickets are on sale now at Madhatter and Finders, and are $11.

The show is open to the public, and it is reserved seating. The show at Anderson Arena is scheduled to start at 8:00 pm and as long as it is not sold out, tickets will be available at the door as well.

For more info on the band, including show dates, bio's, and mp3's, check out their website at <http://ofarevolution.com>

Beyond BG to Invade Anderson Arena April 19th

BY JULIE MAWHORR

What a deal! Free food, plus a chance to win a trip for two to New York City, $3000 tuition from SBX, tons of cool prizes and live music, give-aways, a caricature artist, magician, balloon animals.

So what is this all about? It's Beyond BG, a goodbye to BGSU celebration for everyone on campus and in the community. The University Ambassadors and The Student Alumni Association host this huge event, in honor of the graduating seniors and their dedication to BGSU. The Outstanding Senior and Beyond BG scholarship will be awarded to the honored recipients.

So to celebrate our final days of the semester, local pizza places such as Piscanello's, Papa Johns, Subway, are coming to give tons of free samples. Then you get to vote on your favorite place to get pizza, subs and breadsticks. Live music from Arcadia Jam, free gifts as you visit each of our "cities:" Seattle, Los Angeles, Miami, Chicago and New York City, to go along with our theme "Choose Your Destination."

The special Emcee for the evening is Matt Mahaney. He is a graduate of BGSU, former football player and worked at Ziggy's Bar and Grill. Currently an actor, he has appeared on Days of Our Lives and sitcoms such as "Third Rock from the Sun".

Kick off to Beyond BG starts Monday, April 16, with Senior Week. There will be a Velcro Wall, Bungee Run, and special discounts for seniors.

All Senior Week events will be held during the day in the area between the Education Building and Eppler Complex. The huge Beyond BG event will be held in Anderson Arena on Thursday, April 19, from 8:00pm-10:00pm.

Health Fairs, Authors, & Lesbians! Oh my!

BY KEVIN AEH AND KYLENE FOSTER

—There probably won't be a little man pretending to be a wizard, but there will be plenty of free samples if you follow the healthy brick road. The 2001 Health Fair is scheduled for today from 10:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

This year's theme for the fair is "Follow the Healthy Brick Road..." With health screenings, raffle prizes and other freebies, it just might be even better than Oz. The Health Fair is sponsored by the Wellness Connection and will take place in 101 Olscamp. Call 372-WELL for more information.

—Another event scheduled for today is a lecture by Lori Saint-Martin. At 4:30 p.m. Saint-Martin, an author, translator, and literary critic, will discuss the intricacies of translating English-Canadian literature in Quebec. The discussion will take place in the Women's Center in Hanna Hall. For further information and/or reservations, call 419.372.2457.

—On Friday, April 20, at the Women's Center, the Women's Research Network will be holding a discussion called "Out of the Closet - Methodological, Theoretical and Personal Challenges."

This discussion will examine the conceptual, methodological and practical issues surrounding lesbian research.

Panelists will address several important questions that concern topics such as: what constitutes lesbian research, issues that arise when conducting lesbian research, the relationships between lesbians and women/feminists, and how lesbian research is funded. This event is free and open to the public.

Women unite to take back night

BY KYLENE FOSTER, ASSISTANT EDITOR

On Thursday, April 12 from 7 to 10:30 p.m., Bowling Green women will be "taking back the night."

The purpose of "Take Back the Night" is to bring together organizations, civic leaders and individuals of the Bowling Green community. They will protest violence against women and promote awareness of the attitudes, beliefs and behaviors that encourage this type of violence.

While different organizations and agencies may sponsor this powerful event, the message is always the same: "We march to demand that the perpetrators of this violence—the batterers, the rapists, the murderers—be held responsible for their actions and be made to change."

"Take Back the Night" is sponsored by Womyn for Womyn. Contact the Coalition Against Sexual Offenses at 372-2120 for more information.
